residents and the profits come back to support initiatives in the Manor.

Our biggest national shopping season is coming up and the R.O.S.E. is a very fruitful source for gifts. Originally I had thought only in terms of gifts for the girls, daughter, daughter-in-law and so forth. Then May showed me a wonderful box for a gentleman's valuables. It was also a music box. Yes, there is something for everybody, even the petite shopper in the photo! Try it, you will like it.

Customers come in all sizes and ages to purchase gifts, to find new outfits or just to admire and make notes for future use!

May Waldroup has offered to advertise some of the interesting, unique, or simply amazing items that she has received from residents for sale in the R.O.S.E. Many newcomers may not be familiar with the varied store of merchandise available in the shop and the annex of larger holdings located downstairs. We admire the stunning window displays of clothing, jewelry and accessories that compete with Fifth Avenue for originality, however, we may not be aware of the extent and variety of items tucked away. Go in and talk to May or one of the many dedicated sales people and counselors ("Yes, it fits you well!" or, "I believe your son-in-law will like it") all are residents. The merchandise is supplied by resi-

AN INVITATION TO BRIDGE PLAYERS

A hearty welcome is extended to Manor bridge players who would like to learn more about “Duplicate”. We have a thriving club going here, but we could use a few more players.

Somehow the rumor circulates that it is difficult. Not true! It is the same old bridge game with one major difference. You play those poor hands you always seem to get, then pass them to the next table, and they must play the identical cards. The attraction of Duplicate is that you get to see how someone else fared with those hands, and your score depends on the comparison.

So what we offer is a free and private trial session. Just one table at your place or ours or in the Game Room. We don’t presume to teach you how to win — that’s what Lyde does. We just want to demonstrate the simple mechanics of the game and quash the rumor that Duplicate is difficult.

If you are just a little curious, call Gordon Wright at 4817. What’s to lose? You might like it!

Landscape report - IT'S OFFICIAL ~

At the Landscape Committee meeting on Sept. 14, chaired by Harry Hanson and attended by CEO Jane Ipsen, Director of Environmental Services Brian Rasmussen, and Head Grounds Keeper Gordon Dill, final plans were presented for the renovation of the front lawn. In addition to the members of the Landscape Committee, a number of residents attended the meeting. A schemata was shown accompanied by a plant list. The list included the existing pepper tree with the addition of several more pepper trees, strategic planting of additional trees including California redbud, several grasses and manzanita shrubs. The completed new landscape will have interesting colors and textures. The project includes grading the front lawn area, adding additional soil to bring the existing pepper tree into the design, and new planting across the main drive to the reception area. The work is scheduled to start about October 1 and is expected to be completed in 4 to 6 weeks. Development and maturation of the plants will take several seasons. Shrubs and trees will need regular pruning to shape them as they grow. Drip irrigation will be installed. The cost of the project is about $280,000 which includes an additional $20,000 to bring in the additional soil for the retained pepper tree. The plans and plant list will be displayed in the lounge across from the desk.

Naturally Beautiful!

We stop and admire them. They are always original interpretations of nature's bounty. Committee members gather greens and flowers from all over the grounds, sometimes finding seedpods and branches that fit the concept they have in mind. We see carefully constructed bouquets, abstract designs, minimal Asian presentations and tall constructions involving flags or other "accessories"!

and offer our praise for the beauty of the flowers and the joy that they bring to everyone. Linda Page is chairperson of the committee and Joan Chambers, Madeleine Wood, Gayle Holmes, Char Martin and Sheila Cooper are the members who offer their creative services so that we know we live in a garden spot.

Thank You!
