CINCO DE MAYO

Cinco de Mayo is observed annually on May 5. It celebrates the defeat of the French army during the Battle of Puebla (Batalla de Puebla) in Mexico on May 5, 1862. This battle was important for at least two reasons. First, although considerably outnumbered, the Mexicans defeated a much-better-equipped French army. Second, since the Battle of Puebla, no country in the Americas has been invaded by any European military force. Cinco de Mayo is sometimes mistaken to be Mexico's Independence Day—the most important national holiday in Mexico—which is celebrated on September 16, commemorating the Cry of Dolores that initiated the war of Mexican independence from Spain. Historian Justo Sierra has written in his Political Evolution of the Mexican People that had Mexico not defeated the French in Puebla on May 5, 1862, France would have gone to the aid of the Confederacy in the U.S. Civil War, and the United States' destiny would have been different.

According to a paper published by the UCLA Center for the Study of Latino Health and Culture about the origin of the observance of Cinco de Mayo in the United States, the modern American focus on that day first started in California in the 1860s in response to the resistance to French rule in Mexico.

A 2007 UCLA Newsroom article notes that, "the holiday, which has been celebrated in California continuously since 1863, is virtually ignored in Mexico." Time magazine reports that "Cinco de Mayo started to come into vogue in 1940s America during the rise of the Chicano Movement." The holiday crossed over from California into the rest of the United States in the 1950s and 1960s but did not gain popularity until the 1980s, when marketers, especially beer companies, capitalized on the celebratory nature of the day and began to promote it.

In a 1998 study in the Journal of American Culture it was reported that there were more than 120 official US celebrations of Cinco de Mayo in 21 different states. An update in 2006 found that the number of official Cinco de Mayo events was 150 or more, according to José Alamillo, a professor of ethnic studies at Washington State University in Pullman, who has studied the cultural impact of Cinco de Mayo north of the border. Los Angeles' Fiesta Broadway has been billed as the largest Cinco de Mayo celebration in the world, which it most certainly was at its peak in the 1990s, when it attracted crowds of 500,000 or more. In recent years attendance has seen a dramatic decrease.

Large Cinco de Mayo celebrations are also held in cities such as Chicago, Houston, San Jose, San Antonio, Sacramento, Phoenix, Albuquerque, Denver and El Paso, where a large proportion of the population has Mexican origins. Many people hang up banners, and school districts organize lessons and special events to educate their pupils about the culture of Americans of Mexican descent.

LEST WE FORGET - FRANK BROAD

Sometime in 1981, my wife Dottie and I as their sponsors met the Broads. Maybe it wasn't mutual, but we were more than impressed. And it so happened we readily became friends, a relationship that has all these years continued to grow. Even today, at Hillcrest, we happily eat, drink, play and camp out twenty-four a day.

Now, Frank's wife Dorothy has kept Frank in tow very nicely, what with their seven great kids, all of whom many of us have met. And we could be writing a favorable piece about her and their family. But this time my intent is to focus on the old man and convey to every resident his remarkable leadership role at the Manor.

Born in 1919 in Wilmette, Illinois, Frank went on to graduate from Northwestern as an Industrial Engineer. During the War, as an ROTC Navy he became a Lt. Cmdr., serving on several ships. After separation he married and worked for "The Telephone Company," but later joined Equitable Life Insurance, a happy and successful move that ended him up in San Francisco, responsible for a large district and many folks with life insurance.

He retired at 65 if you might call it, for he became restless living in the beautiful town of Moraga and became the sole proprietor of Grampa's Fixit, exhibiting skills we at the Manor all recognize - his being able to fix anything.

At the age of 81, they both decided to find a continuing care facility and finally settled on the Manor, a move he agrees was his best ever. It so happens it was also a great move for the Manor. Let me give you reasons why, by elaborating his many accomplishments and contributions:

- Six years on the Council and attending most all the Board of Directors Meetings
- Two terms as the Council President
- Chair of the Religious, Sports and Games, and Endowment Committees
- Member of the Disaster Committee, Half Fast Walkers, and Resident Shop
- Best known for his paperback library, bingo calling, chef at annual BBQ, ice cream socials, lousy jokes, pretty fair bowling and bridge skills, obsession with jigsaw puzzles, love of mint chocolate, and willingness to fix anything anytime for anybody.

Yes, it's most doubtful that many a resident can match his many contributions to the Manor's operation and his friendship with so many residents - a prince we should never forget, both during his independent days and now at Hillcrest.

Art Brown

At an out-of-town convention, a man won a large Queen Anne wingback chair. Getting it back to his seventh-floor hotel room proved a challenge. He got it into the elevator, but there wasn't enough room for everyone, so he invited a woman to take a seat. When the elevator stopped on the third floor, a drunk started to enter. He looked at the woman on the chair for a second before suggesting, "If I were you, I'd ask for a bigger room."
